

Our Mission

Mandy's Farm is a nonprofit organization that assists individuals with developmental disabilities in achieving their goals by structuring a positive, purposeful and caring environment for living, learning, and working in the community.

Mandy's Farm serves over 125 adults with developmental disabilities living in the Albuquerque metro area. 100% of those we serve are living below the federal poverty line.

The services at Mandy's Farm provide a lifeline to adults with developmental disabilities, allowing them to successfully participate in their community, obtain and retain employment, and reduce instances of abuse, neglect, and exploitation.

Mandy's Farm provides support within three homes where adults with disabilities choose to live as housemates. We also provide services to individuals who live with families or surrogate families.

These services help individuals to live healthy, safe, and independent lives.

Through our Appaloosa Art Space program in Nob Hill, the individuals we serve are given access to visual arts, ceramics, reading and writing, language classes (American Sign Language and Spanish), and community volunteer opportunities, often for the first time.

Mandy's Farm believes that everyone can work. We assist adults with disabilities in obtaining employment in typical community settings making minimum wage or higher. We also provide on-the-job support to help those we serve retain employment.

We currently have the sole therapeutic pool located in the South Valley. Our adaptive aquatics center provides opportunities for clients to build strength, experience sensory relief, and have fun in a safe, relaxing environment. We also offer the pool for rent to individuals who need access to a therapeutic pool, but do not receive Mandy's Farm services.

Through our adaptive horsemanship program, Mandy's Farm provides equine-assisted therapy and horseback riding lessons to individuals of all ages , with and without disabilities. This allows participants to build physical strength, social skills, and self confidence as they partner with their horse.

One of the things that makes Mandy's Farm unique is the farm itself. We build self-efficacy, independence, and prevocational skills through workshops in our barn, animal husbandry activities, and gardening experiences. Clients are then able to leverage these skills to enter the workforce.

Residential Support

The individuals we serve often require intensive support in their homes to ensure health and safety. Our services allow individuals to live in the situation that best meets their needs, whether with family, a surrogate family, or with roommates. Our staff balances building independence with providing the supports needed for continued success.

Teri Gallegos, a young woman who recently joined our residence in the Northeast heights, said "I was nervous at first to leave my family and move out on my own, but I feel confident in myself now that I have moved to Mandy's Farm. We are like a family here. I've learned how to manage my own space and I love [the staff] because they listen to me and my opinions, and give me confidence boosters that I can do anything, it just takes me some time."

Everyone Can Work:

Adults with developmental disabilities are more likely to be unemployed following high school than their neuro-typical peers, with an unemployment rate of 65.6% across the country. In New Mexico, the unemployment rate for adults with disabilities is even higher, hovering around 70-75%.

The individuals we serve often require enhanced support in the community and the workplace to assist with personal care, sensory regulation, and behavioral support. With the support provided by Mandy's Farm, service recipients are able to successfully obtain and retain employment in the community at minimum wage or higher.

At Mandy's Farm, we work to match the needs of employers with qualified individuals who are currently seeking work. We recently realized that we needed a receptionist to handle visitors and phone calls at our administrative offices in Nob Hill. We hired Courtney and Brian, who were job seekers in the Everyone Can Work program. They have made our offices a more inviting, organized, and happy place.

Your Impact

Pre-Vocational Training

In serving adults with developmental disabilities, so much of what we do is focused on building independence. Part of this work is preparing individuals who have graduated high school to move into the workforce. This can consist of hands-on skill-building in the barn and the garden, participating in volunteer work at local nonprofits, and learning about boundaries, relationships, and community safety.

One of our pre-vocational participants, Josh Caldwell, has recently started job development and is actively looking for work in the community. Josh has grown so much through our program and we are proud of him for taking this next step. He makes sure to wear his new professional clothes in order to impress potential employers on his job hunt. We are certain that Josh has developed the skills he needs to make a great employee.

Animal Husbandry & Adaptive Horsemanship

Maegan Dover, age 22, came to Mandy's Farm in early July in hopes of gaining more confidence and independence, while simultaneously developing a hobby that could help her grow and adapt. With loving encouragement from her parents, she began taking private horseback riding lessons. When she first began, she was too afraid to approach or touch any of the Farm's horses. With patience and time, Maegan became more comfortable around the horses, starting with the Farm's sweet miniature horse, Charm. Maegan quickly became confident around the horses, even with Beauty, the Farm's largest horse. Now Maegan has settled in to the routine of riding. She grooms, mounts, and does activities on horseback with no fear. She is sitting up taller and smiling, and seems more at peace after her lessons. Horses have always been seen as helpful and therapeutic animals. Maegan's story is just another wonderful example of how important it is to develop trusting connections with animals and people, as well as another assurance of the incredible work happening here at Mandy's Farm.

49 animals were provided a loving home, including five horses, three alpacas, one goose, one rooster, five ducks, four dogs, two cats, 15 chickens, and 13 goats.

Growth at Mandy's Farm!

Mandy's Farm had another exciting year providing supports to individuals with developmental disabilities in their homes, the community and at work!

We were able to significantly increase our supports to families and individuals through the addition of a new Supported Living residence (a group home setting where adults with developmental disabilities choose to live as roommates with staff support), increased attendance within our active pre-vocational programs, increased enrollment in our employment program, and the continued growth of our horsemanship program.

We are very proud that we have been able to expand quality services without seeing a significant increase in our expenses. Our focus continues to be on the quality of care and impact of the services we provide to the individuals we serve and our community.
